ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

Consumer confidence is now above the neutral level for the first time since the pandemic began, posting its tenth gain in a row to hit an eight-month high. Notably, there is sharp improvement in 'time to buy a major household item', which could signal a buoyant Christmas shopping period. Lower interest rates and the RBA's commitment to support employment could have been triggers for the gain. Our concern over weakness in last week's 'current financial conditions' has relaxed somewhat as the fall turned around this week.
